Trust seeks £15m boost for hospital

A BID for up to £15 million cash support is set to be made to develop Newmarket Hospital, it has been revealed.

Suffolk Primary Care Trust (PCT), which runs the hospital, will be seeking Government funding to help provide additional services.

Two of Newmarket's family doctor practices, Orchard House and The Rookery medical centre, are expected to move to the hospital site at Exning Road.

Clinics and X-ray services at the hospital are also set to be expanded.

Email: editorial@newmarketweeklynews.co.uk

Councillor Warwick Hirst, former mayor of Newmarket and chairman of the Newmarket Health Forum which fought to save the hospital, gave details of the latest proposals to a meeting of Newmarket Town Council.

He said representatives of the PCT had outlined their plans to the forum. "They are proceeding to a business plan and will be seeking £12 to £15 million from the Government to develop the hospital."

In-patient beds at the hospital, which had previously been in doubt, would be retained with spaces for up to 18 patients. A decision from the Government on the funding was expected this autumn.

Cllr Hirst said that the PCT would carry out consultation about the proposals.

Cllr Bill Burch, the mayor, said after the meeting: "It was very good indeed to hear about the plans for the hospital.

"The only concern I have is that they will have to arrange transport for people going to the doctors' surgeries.

"At the moment they can get a bus to the Guineas centre and can walk to The Rookery and Orchard House.

But if they are at the hospital there will need to be some sort of minibus service because the buses don't go into the hospital grounds."

The future of the hospital was assured after Health Secretary Alan Johnson backed PCT plans earlier this year following an independent review.

Talks about moving GPs' practices onto the hospital site have been going on for a number of years. The town's third GP practice, Oakfields, is set to remain at its purpose-built site in Vicarage Road.

Cast go crazy for West End musical

THE hit musical Crazy for You is the latest production to be staged by Newmarket's amateur dramatic society, NOMADS.

The show features the songs of George and Ira Gershwin and was performed on Broadway and the West End in the 1990s as an adaptation of the brothers' 1930s show Girl Crazy.

It features standards including I Got Rhythm and They Can't Take That Away From Me.

The NOMADS production features Jamie Maguire in the role of Bobby Child and Karen Thorpe as Polly Baker.

The directors are Gail Baker and Wallace Wareham. Simon Pearce is the musical director. The show runs from Monday to Saturday, April 5, at the Kings Theatre in Fitzroy Street, Newmarket.

Tickets, priced £10; with concessions at £8 only available for two performances; can be booked by calling (01638) 663337.

Ex-mayor takes early retirement

A FORMER mayor is taking early retirement from a top local government job – after less than five years.

Linda Sherer, Newmarket's mayor from 2002 to 2003, is to retire from Bury St Edmunds Town Council where she has been the clerk since September, 2003, when it was formed.

The future of the council had been in doubt after a majority of councillors were elected last year under the Abolish Bury Council (ABC) banner.

But Mrs Sherer, who will leave the council at the end of this month, said she was confident that it would continue. Some of the ABC councillors have resigned and elections for new councillors are being held this month and in April.

Mrs Sherer said she had asked for early retirement after joking that the town council chairman, Cllr Roy Bebbington, had retired early from St Edmundsbury Borough Council and seemed to be enjoying it.

"I'm so lucky," said Mrs Sherer, who lives in Newmarket. "I can do all the things I've been wanting to do."

She said she had "the relevant birthday" last month to become eligible for early retirement. But she declined to give her age.

"I've been here four and a half years," she said. "I never intended to work until I was a hundred."

She said she intended to spend time in Australia where her son lives and where she has also resided in the past.

Before getting the job at Bury St Edmunds she was clerk to Brandon Parish Council for two years and was temporary clerk at Newmarket Town Council.

Mrs Sherer did not seek re-election to Newmarket council last year.

She said Bury St Edmunds council was in the process of "downsizing" to smaller premises and could use serviced offices to save money.

■ CAPTION . . . Linda Sherer during her time as Mayor of Newmarket

Mrs Sherer said she was looking forward to spending time in Australia "riding horses".

"It's a beautiful country," she added.

Green grease

CHIP fat can now be recycled at household waste centres at Newmarket, Mildenhall and Haverhill.

The new service for householders has been introduced by Suffolk County Council to stop fats, oils and grease used in cooking being poured into drains where it costs Anglian Water more than £5 million a year to clear blockages.

Special containers are being installed at recycling centres across the county to take used cooking oil.

It will be used by Brandon-based company Living Fuels to generate electricity.

For more details visit www.suffolkrecycling.org.uk

Summer shows

FREE summer entertainment for children is being planned again by Newmarket Town Council.

The popular sessions, in the town's Memorial Hall Gardens, will take place during the school summer holidays as in previous years.

Entertainer Poz will stage six Thursday afternoon sessions, between 2pm and 4pm, from July 24.

They will include magic shows, circus skills, a Teddy Bears' picnic and Punch and Judy show.

Newmarket-based Thrill Seekers will also be providing large inflatable toys for the children to play on from 1pm.

Carers' cash

GRANTS totalling £25,000 are set to be given to organisations providing "care in the community".

Organisations providing services for elderly and disabled people are among those which will benefit from the cash from Forest Heath District Council.

The authority received applications for £46,525, but whittled down the list to fit its budget of £25,000.

The highest grants – £4,000 each – will go to Newmarket Day Centre for the elderly and Gatehouse St John's Day Centre in Mildenhall.

Gas grabbed

A GAS cylinder was stolen from a steel cage behind a business unit.

Thieves broke into the compound behind the premises in James Carter Road, Mildenhall, between 5pm on Monday, March 17, and noon the next day to steal the propane gas cylinder.

Anyone with information should call Pc Peter Maxfield at the Mildenhall Safer Neighbourhood Team on (01284) 774100 or Crimestoppers on 0800 555111.

MP calls for campaign to save post offices

POST office closures announced yesterday are being opposed by community leaders.

Richard Spring, MP for West Suffolk, has called for a campaign to save the eight branches in his constituency which have been earmarked for closure – including Newmarket's Exning Road Post Office, the Chalkstone branch in Haverhill and village post offices in Barton Mills and Cowlinge.

Mr Spring said: "I am bitterly disappointed that eight post offices in my constituency have been proposed for closure. I have spoken to and received many letters and emails from lots of local people who totally rely on these post offices."

He added: "We now have six weeks to save our post offices. I am encouraging my constituents to write to the Post Office as part of the public consultation outlining their specific concerns."

People can respond to the consultation by writing to National Consultation Team, Post Office Ltd, FREEPOST CONSULTATION TEAM (no stamp is required) or by emailing consultation@postoffice.co.uk.

Exning Road post office is Newmarket's last remaining sub-post office. Its future was already in doubt because the owners have applied for planning permission to convert it to flats.

Forest Heath District Council's planning committee was deciding last night whether to grant permission.

Cllr Bill Burch, Newmarket's mayor, said: "I'm very disappointed. The town council has opposed planning permission in an effort to try to keep it open."

'Sex therapy' psychiatrist is struck off

A PSYCHIATRIST has been struck off at his own request after staging secret sex therapy sessions with his secretary and pestering a woman colleague about her sex life.

Dayananda Rajapakse, 67, was accused of hypnotising secretary Susan Carlyle, 35, at Beech House, a private hospital for people with mental problems and learning disabilities in Newmarket, for sexual kicks.

But he was cleared after a week-long hearing at the General Medical Council (GMC) in June 2005.

However, the GMC ruled that the sessions were "inappropriate" because he was Ms Carlyle's boss and had failed to record their meetings held behind locked doors at his office.

Ms Carlyle told the council that he had performed a sex act on her and encouraged her to touch herself.

The GMC also found him guilty of making inappropriate advances to a woman colleague, Eirween Peters, 38. He pestered her about her sex life and left gifts in her desk.

The Sri Lankan doctor had been suspended for nine months after a hearing for serious professional misconduct. But he was allowed to return to work in March, 2006, under strict conditions.

At his latest resumed hearing Rajapakse said he had been unable to work as most of his psychiatric work was performed in a community setting.

He asked the GMC to remove his name from the medical register, meaning he will be banned from working as a doctor.

Panel chairman Professor Michael Whitehouse said Rajapakse, of Braintree, Essex, is now of retirement age and suffering from ill health.

Prof Whitehouse said: "The panel is satisfied that it is in the public interest that Dr Rajapakse's application for voluntary erasure be allowed."

In November last year, Rajapakse also lost his approved status for mental health work, due to the length of time since he last practised and the continuing GMC conditions. The doctor told a review panel last March he regretted his actions towards the two women.

Have your say on plans for museum

VISITORS can give their views about plans to expand a museum at a special open day on Saturday.

Forest Heath District Council is running the open day at Mildenhall Museum to get opinions about the possible improvements to the King Street attraction.

The museum houses replicas of the Mildenhall Treasure, a collection of Roman silverware discovered in nearby West Row during the Second World War.

There are plans to expand the museum to display the Anglo-Saxon warrior, found buried with his horse, weapons and other possessions at the Lakenheath US Air Force base.

The open day, on Saturday, will include sessions at 11am and 2pm when visitors will be given a tour of exhibits and then invited to take part in a discussion. Each session should last about 90 minutes.

There are 20 places on each session which have to be pre-booked by contacting Lizzi Cocker, the council's arts and heritage officer, on (01638) 719257 or email her at Lizzi.cocker@forest-heath.gov.uk

Easter egg fun launches new season

AN EASTER egg hunt for children was held at Burwell Museum to mark its reopening for the first time this year.

The museum, which is run by volunteers, will open on Sundays, bank holidays and Thursday afternoons starting from Easter.

It has been open to the public since 1992, but moves to start the museum were made about 10 years earlier.

One of the latest developments at the museum is the construction of a new display building to house the last remaining Burwell and District bus.

Work on the building, which is costing £80,000, started in January and is due to be finished by Spring Bank Holiday on Monday, May 26, when the official opening is due to take place.

The work has been helped by an anonymous donation of cash but the museum trustees are appealing for donations to help pay for it.

They are also expecting that half the cost will be covered by a grant.

The next bank holiday event at the museum, on May 5, will remember BBC Radio Cambridgeshire character Dennis of Grunty Fen with a Rhubarb Festival.

Christopher South, Radio Cambridgeshire presenter and columnist for our sister paper, the Cambridge Evening News, will be taking part in the festival.

Police hunt attackers after girl, 16, raped

Officers analyse CCTV footage

BY John Goode

Email: editorial@newmarketweeklynews.co.uk

A RAPE investigation is continuing in Newmarket after a 16-year-old girl told police she had been attacked near a night club.

The girl approached police on duty outside the town's De Niro's night club, in Grosvenor Yard, just before 2.30am on Monday and said she had been raped by two men.

Police cordoned off the nearby Kings Theatre in Fitzroy Street after the girl said she had been raped in an alleyway next to the building. She did not suffer serious injuries.

Officers made enquiries in the area and have been looking at CCTV security camera footage as a part of the investigation.

The two attackers are described as white men in their early 20s with dark hair.

Members of NOMADS, Newmarket's amateur dramatic society, found police tape across the car park of Kings Theatre when they turned up to prepare for a forthcoming production on Monday afternoon.

Gail Baker, stage manager, said: "We didn't know what had happened.

"People would be amazed at what we find down that side of the theatre. There's always so much going on after people come out of the night club and pubs. It's a nightmare for people who live down here."

Police horses were on patrol in the town over the Easter weekend as part of measures to tackle street violence when the town is busy with revellers.

Police and councillors have been concerned about drink-related problems in the town on weekend nights.

Former mayor Councillor Warwick Hirst has said the town centre becomes a "no go" area and people feel intimidated by drinkers.

Police have handed out numerous fixed-penalty fines for minor offences as a measure to prevent violence from escalating.

The issue of late drinks licences – when some pubs close after midnight and night clubs can stay open until 4am – has been a continuing concern.

Detectives heading the rape enquiry have appealed for anyone who was in the Grosvenor Yard and Fitzroy Street area of the town between 1.30am and 3.30am on Monday to come forward, regardless of whether they think they saw anything of relevance.

Anyone with information can call Suffolk police on (01473) 613500.

■ Two youths, aged 17 and 18, were later said to be helping police with their inquiries.

Drunken man threatened police with samurai sword

A DRUNK threatened to decapitate police officers with a samurai sword.

Police seized weapons including an axe, two swords and a meat cleaver after arresting him following a siege at his flat.

Anthony Clark, 47, had threatened to cut off police officers' heads with a samurai sword at his flat in Icewell Hill, Newmarket, magistrates heard.

Now he has been given a suspended prison sentence and the weapons have been permanently confiscated.

Magistrate Roy May, passing sentence at Bury St Edmunds magistrates' court, told Clark: "This was a collection of very dangerous weapons.

"The offences were aggravated by your consumption of alcohol."

Clark, who was banned from entering Newmarket while on bail awaiting sentence, was given 16 weeks in jail suspended for 18 months.

He was also made the subject of 18 months supervision by the probation service with a requirement to address his drink problem.

BY John Goode

Email: editorial@newmarketweeklynews.co.uk

In addition, he was given a further concurrent eight-week suspended prison sentence for causing damage at the flats and was ordered to pay £400 to Kings Forest Housing, the owners.

Clark was also banned from going to the St Denys block of flats at Icewell Hill.

But the court heard he intended to return to Newmarket to live.

While on bail he has been living in Letchworth and Little Thurlow.

Clark admitted having an offensive weapon, four charges of causing criminal damage, affray, assaulting Sergeant Steven Fisk, and failing to answer bail at court for a previous hearing.

The court heard previously that the siege, on December 22, triggered a major police operation.

Officers found Clark, kicking at the door of the St Denys block where his girlfriend lived.

Kevin McCarthy, mitigating said Clark had "absolutely no recollection" of what had happened.

He said Clark was "a man in despair largely due to his failure to control his drink problem."

But he said Clark was willing to engage with counsellors to tackle his problems.

Store help stacks up for young cooks

AN AFTER-SCHOOL cookery club has been served up a treat from a neighbouring supermarket.
The club, at Newmarket's St Louis Roman Catholic Primary School, is supported by the Waitrose store next door.
A member of staff from the store teaches the children at the weekly club to cook a dish.
The store provides the ingredients and now it has given some cooking equipment to the Fordham Road school.
Six children take part in the club each half term.
Teresa Selvey, the headteacher, said: "I happened to mention to Waitrose last year that it would be lovely to have an after-school club where the children cooked a healthy meal and then sat down to eat it together before going home. Waitrose responded by offering to run the club, provide the food and equip the kitchen!

"The club now runs every Tuesday after school.

"The children really enjoy the cooking and the washing up. They plan their own menus with Tricia from Waitrose and enjoy the family atmosphere of preparing and eating food together. The school always smells fantastic and there is a great atmosphere in the kitchen. We consider our school to be one big happy family so this club is a good example of what we are about at St Louis."

The school kitchen was refurbished by a group of parents using units supplied by Ridgeons and equipment from Waitrose.

MP's hunt for unsung 'local hero'

AN MP has appealed for nominations for a "local hero" to join him at an award ceremony at the House of Commons.

Richard Spring, pictured, whose West Suffolk constituency includes Newmarket, Mildenhall and Haverhill, is supporting the scheme to honour people over 50 who give something back to their communities.

The Experience Corps, a not-for-profit company, runs the annual awards to recognise the work done by older people.

Mr Spring said: "I urge everyone to nominate someone who they think deserves the recognition and thanks for their contribution.

"It's a wonderful opportunity to acknowledge the remarkable efforts of our older and often unsung volunteers."

Nominations should be sent to him at the House of Commons, London, SW1A 0AA.

Call for more 'socially responsible' tourism

TOURISTS are being encouraged to "go green" when they visit the Forest Heath district.

New brochures suggest that visitors ride bikes, walk or use public transport. They are also asked to sample locally-sourced products and take their rubbish home with them.

Simon Batey, tourist information centre manager at Palace House in Newmarket, said: "There's plenty to see and do in the Forest Heath area.

"Whilst Newmarket is well known as the Home of Horseracing, the forest areas in and around the Brecks, for example, provide a very different experience, with the popular sites like Brandon Country Park being popular with countryside and recreation enthusiasts.

"With this in mind it's especially important to promote responsible tourism activity in these ancient landscapes."

Appeal after clubber hurt

POLICE have appealed to nightclub revellers to help them with an investigation into an incident which left a man with head and facial injuries.

The man was found with a deep cut on the back of his head and laceration to the side of his mouth in De Niro's, in Newmarket.

Police have asked for anyone who was in the club at around 1.50am on Friday, March 7, to come forward.

Anyone with information should contact Detective Constable Claire Burgess at Newmarket CID on (01284) 774100 or Crimestoppers on 0800 555111.

New teams 'a success'

THE first year of police Safer Neighbourhood Teams has been hailed a success.

The teams, which cover Newmarket, Mildenhall, Haverhill and other areas of West Suffolk, marked their first anniversary with a reception at the Athenaeum in Bury St Edmunds.

Chief Superintendent Paul Marshall, Suffolk police western area commander, said: "Safer Neighbourhood Teams have had a positive impact across the area since their inception in 2007.

"These dedicated teams have firmly embedded themselves in their communities, providing reassurance and a familiar, friendly face whilst getting to grips with local issues and concerns.

"Our partnership working has enabled key groups like housing associations, councils, youth workers and residents' associations to come together to solve problems, with a joint approach ensuring the right agency for the job and a network of support.

"The teams have been able to tackle the things that matter to local people – through street briefings, public meetings and visits, the teams have been able to find out what really concerns a community and what changes and improvements would benefit them the most."

New Police Community Support Officers have joined the teams alongside special constables and regular police.

Chief Supt Marshall said the "structure and staffing" of teams would be reviewed to help them achieve their full potential.

Plastic bags banned for a day

GIVE-AWAY plastic carrier bags are set to be banned in Newmarket on Tuesday.

The town is due to stage its first plastic bag free day as part of a campaign headed by the town's deputy mayor, Cllr Chris Turner.

He chairs the ReNew group which has organised three plastic bag ban days.

The days are being supported by the town's Waitrose and Tesco supermarkets. Funding for the campaign has been obtained from a number of bodies.

The supermarkets will be giving out free "bags for life" to shoppers and the campaign group is intending to provide its own reuseable bags.

Other plastic bag ban days will be on May 1 and June 1.

Memorial service for former police chief

A MEMORIAL service was due to be held yesterday for former Newmarket police chief Trevor Hewitt who died after a long battle with cancer.

Mr Hewitt, 71, was chief inspector in charge of Newmarket police station for three years from 1977.

He transferred to the Metropolitan Police as a superintendent and became a chief superintendent before he retired in 1991.

He was chairman of the Newmarket Royal British Legion branch until his illness forced him to give up.

A private family funeral was held on Tuesday.

Mr Hewitt, who lived in Exning, is survived by his wife, Olive, two daughters and two grandchildren.

Warehouse proposals

PLANS for an 11,600 sq ft warehouse on Newmarket's Oaks Drive industrial park are being considered by Forest Heath District Council.

CI Industries, owners of the site, has applied for planning permission for the single-storey warehouse to be built on land behind the Netto supermarket.

The identity of the company that will use the new unit has not been revealed in the application.

Voters get what they deserve

Sir, I was amused to see someone moaning about the Council Tax hike this year. Strangely it was no worse than any hike over the last 10 or more years.

Even the police needing a 9 per cent increase for the umpteenth year (I assume so they can pay for four – yes four – bobbies to patrol the double yellow lines outside Mildenhall's Sainsbury) was no real surprise.

Of course, last year there was a chance to change this. An election. The two Conservatives representing my ward had two independents against them – I know I was one.

Of course, the far-thinking and intelligent people of the area managed to ensure continued waste of funds (anyone want an upgraded council office cheap, when the council is disbanded?) by voting the Conservatives back in as the two representatives, meaning the two independents, got nowhere – as expected.

Frankly I can say to the electorate that you got what you deserved – so tough it out. Maybe next time you might actually think before you vote – though I doubt that.

Young people have their say at conference

STUDENTS acted as "roving reporters" to quiz council and government officials at an event staged at Newmarket Racecourse.

Youngsters from Linton Village College and Cambridge Regional College took part in the event organised by the Government Office for the East GO-East.

Workshops covering subjects, including "Why should we listen to children and young people?" and "Young people in local decision-making", were also held at the Rowley Mile Racecourse.

In addition to the children and young people, speakers at the event included Rob Williams, chief executive of 11 Million – the government organisation for children and young people, Rosalind Turner, director for children and young people at Suffolk County Council, and Hilary Cooper, head of children and learners for the Government Office East.

Chris Hilliard, director for children and learners for Government Office East, said: "It is essential that we invest in young people and children, listen to their views and ensure their involvement in decisions, which matter to them and the future prosperity of the region.

"This conference demonstrated the real potential children and young people have in making a difference to their community and to the region."

Pupils rewarded for study skills

PUPILS from schools in Newmarket, Ely, Cambridge and Haverhill, were among youngsters who received graduation awards from former Ipswich Town player John Wark.

The ceremony, in the Tattersalls racehorse sales ring, rewarded youngsters who have taken part in the Playing for Success scheme at the Winning Post Study Centre at Newmarket's National Stud.

The centre is run by Ipswich Town Community Trust Special and former Ipswich player Wark was the guest of honour.

He said: "It has been an honour to reward the children who have shown a genuine interest in developing their own skills in their own time after having already spent a full day at school. It demonstrates a level of commitment that should be commended."

The Study Centre works with pupils aged between nine and 14 at 24 schools.

The Playing for Success scheme, funded by the Department for Children, Schools and Families, seeks to use sport as a means to engage students and develop literacy, numeracy and ICT skills.

The Winning Post centre opened in 2005.

Driving ban is lifted for cancer victim

A CANCER-sufferer has had a driving ban lifted so that he can go to vital treatment sessions at hospital.

BY John Goode
Email: editorial@newmarketweeklynews.co.uk

Valentine Smith, 31, was given a six-month driving ban last month after he admitted having a meat cleaver as an offensive weapon when he asked two teenagers to change a flat tyre on his car.

Smith, of Hawthorn Way, Burwell, has now successfully appealed against the ban.

The ban was lifted at Ipswich Crown Court after his lawyer Duncan O'Donnell said he needed to be able to drive for hospital appointments for treatment for bowel cancer.

The rest of Smith's sentence – a 12-week jail sentence suspended for a year and a curfew between 10pm and 6am – still stands.

The court heard that Smith was arrested after the incident on January 27 in Scaltback Drive, Newmarket, when he asked the youths, aged 16 and 17, to change the tyre on his car.

He told the youths as he produced the cleaver: "I haven't got a jack, but I've got this."

When he saw they were alarmed he told them: "That's not for you it's for someone else."

The original sentence was imposed by District Judge David Cooper sitting at Sudbury magistrates' court.

Mr O'Donnell said the incident was the result of "misguided humour" by Smith.

He said: "This man has aggressive cancer of the bowel which requires him to attend Addenbrooke's Hospital in Cambridge three times a week."

The cost of a return taxi journey between Smith's home in Burwell and Addenbrooke's was £42 which placed an impossible financial burden on the family who were living on income support, said Mr O'Donnell.

The only other option was to make a journey involving two taxi rides and two bus rides which was not a practical option for a man in Smith's state of health.

Basketball net and stand stolen

A BASKETBALL net and stand has been stolen from a front garden at Pashford Close, Lakenheath.

A white van was seen in the garden when the theft happened between 11.20am and 5.30pm on Saturday, March 8.

Two men were seen with the van. One was described as white, in his mid 20s to mid 30s, 5ft 11in tall, of slim build and was wearing a black woolly hat.

Anyone with information should call Pc Verdun Baptist at Brandon police on (01284) 774100 or Crimestoppers on 0800 555111.

Eccentric's memorabilia to go under the hammer

A UNIQUE collection of photographs and memorabilia connected with eccentric racehorse owner Dorothy Paget is to be sold at auction in Newmarket.

Miss Paget, the daughter of an English aristocrat and an American mother, was a major figure in the horseracing world in the 1930s and the post-war years. She was as well known for her behaviour as for her success as an owner.

One of her horses, Golden Miller, won the Cheltenham Gold Cup five years running as well as the 1934 Grand National with a new record time.

Miss Paget and the horse are both commemorated with roads in Newmarket named after them.

The collection, with an estimated value of £1,500 – £2,000, will be sold at Bonhams' third racing sale at Tattersalls in Newmarket this summer.

The auctioneers say the collection gives an insight into her life of glamour, riches and recklessness.

Miss Paget, who died aged 54 in 1960, lived for most of her life in Chalfont St Giles, Buckinghamshire, but she was well known in Newmarket's racing industry at the time.

■ ECCENTRIC . . . Dorothy Paget with one of her horses.

Her father was Lord Queensborough and her American mother was Pauline Payne Whitney.

In addition to her interest in racehorses, she was also the financial backer of a supercharged Bentley motor-racing team. She gambled huge sums every year and being highly superstitious wore the same tweed overcoat to every meet but this did not always bring her good luck.

The collection, which Bonhams are selling, shows that she lost more than £108,000 in 1948 – the equivalent of almost £3 million today - and four years later, in 1952, she made a gambling profit of £18,000.

She had a reputation for being tyrannical with her trainers, calling them at all hours and rebuking them when her horses lost.

On one occasion Miss Paget reputedly commandeered her local butcher's Baby Austin for £300 when her own Rolls Royce broke down on the way to a race meeting. When she arrived she was not recognised by her party and from then on she insisted on taking two Rolls Royce cars to every event.

Other items in the sale, due to be held on Saturday, July 29, include a long tom whip formerly owned by Captain Cecil Boyd-Rochfort, who trained the Queen's horses in Newmarket, and a 19th Century enamelled pocket watch commemorating jockey Fred Archer's Derby win of 1881.

Events lined up to raise church funds

FUNDRAISING events are planned to help pay for the restoration of a church organ.

The work, at St Mary's Church, Newmarket, is expected to cost more than £20,000.

A book sale will be held on Saturday at Turner Hall next to the church between 10am to 3pm.

A fashion show will be held on Thursday, April 3, at the M & Co store in the High Street.

Tickets, price £7, are available by calling church warden Janet Ramsay-Helie (01638) 603489 or from Martin's newsagents in St Mary's Square.

Stud applies for late-night licence

NEWMARKET'S National Stud is applying for a licence to sell alcoholic drinks up to 2am and to have live or recorded music played at functions.

The application comes after councillors and residents have expressed concern about late licences in the town centre.

But Tina Dawson, commercial director of the stud, said: "We're not opening a night club."

She said the application was mainly to allow day time visitors to the stud to be able to buy bottled beer or wine at the Wavertree coffee and gift shop, which normally closes before 5pm.

She said: "We were advised to apply for the longer hours to give greater flexibility and to save having to make a new application for a licence if we have a function or someone wanted to hire Wavertree House [where the stud's offices are based] for an event."

The High Street and town centre of Newmarket has been declared a "cumulative impact area" by Forest Heath District Council because of concern about drink-fuelled violence and disturbances.

But the stud lies well outside of the town next to the July racecourse in the neighbouring East Cambridgeshire district.

Its application includes a bid for a late night refreshment licence.

Comments on the application have to be submitted to East Cambridgeshire council's offices in Ely by Wednesday, April 2.

Russian choir to visit

A RUSSIAN choir will visit the village of Freckenham on Saturday, April 5.

The Hermitage Ensemble, which has six members, will perform in St Andrew's Church, Freckenham.

The concert will raise money for the church and will include a wide range of music.

Tickets, priced £8, are available by calling (01638) 720118 or (01638) 720644.

Street closes for upgrade

A STREET has been closed for two months for a £90,000 resurfacing scheme.

Palace Street in Newmarket closed for eight weeks from Tuesday while new block paving and drains are laid. The footpath and cycleway in the street will also be upgraded.

The street runs past historic Palace House, the remaining part of King Charles II's home in the town, and Palace House Stables, the oldest racing yard in the world.

The paving scheme is a step towards creating a major tourist attraction at the stables which are currently empty.

Forest Heath District Council is paying 60 per cent of the cost of the resurfacing with Suffolk County Council funding the rest.

The closure will also affect the junction with Park Lane and All Saints Road which will be closed for some of the time.

Traffic diversions will be signposted via the High Street, The Avenue and Park Lane.

Clare is picked for the People's Race

In our weekly column, reporter JOHN GOODE takes a look behind the racing scene to bring you news from in and around the stables.

ACCOUNTANT Clare Twemlow is one of the riders in a special charity horse race on Grand National Day.

She was one of the final 10 riders chosen for the John Smith's People's Race at Aintree.

They were selected from thousands of applicants for the special flat race before the Grand National on Saturday, April 5.

Clare, 29, from Newmarket, previously worked at the British Racing School in Newmarket where one of the selection weekends was held to choose the finalists from a shortlist of 32 contenders.

She said: "I can't believe I've been accepted.

"I have been working so hard since I first found out that I was initially chosen.

"I am determined to work equally hard on my riding and fitness in the final few weeks to make sure I can enjoy the race.

"This is the most exciting thing I've ever had a chance to do. It's just fantastic."

She will be raising money for Direct Aid for Africa.

The final 10 were chosen at the weekend when jockey instructors Richard Perham and Malcolm Bygrave, together with BBC racing presenter Clare Balding, put them through their paces at Southwell racecourse.

Other jockeys among the amateur riders – many of them without any previous experience, include a nail technician, a housewife and a delivery driver.

The nine-furlong race is backed by bookmakers Ladbrokes, who are putting up £50,000 into the prize fund.

Organisers hope to raise £500,000 for charities which include Sport Relief – this year's official race charity – and other good causes nominated by the competitors.

Each of the jockeys taking part in the race will collect £5,000 for their chosen charity and the winner of the John Smith's People's Race will collect £50,000 for their charity, plus a five-star trip for two to Dubai for racing's 2009 World Cup.

■ DETERMINED . . . Clare Twemlow is working hard in preparation for the race.

Chance to win a prize TV

RACEGOERS and horse-racing workers will have the chance to win a flat-screen television on every day that races are held at Newmarket this year.

The televisions will be prizes in competitions sponsored by electrical retailer Hughes, which opened a new store in the town's High Street last year.

The total prize value is more than £22,000 and different groups will be entitled to enter each competition.

The link-up will also give Hughes' customers a chance for reduced price tickets.

Gaynor Haxby, racecourse marketing manager, said: "We are delighted to be involved with this exciting initiative and look forward to welcoming Hughes' customers to the racecourse during the season."

Details of the prizes, terms and conditions of entry and competition mechanism for each race day can be found at: www.newmarketracecourses.co.uk

Paperback memoirs success

A BATTLE of Britain fighter ace's memoirs are being reprinted in paperback after two hardback printings sold out.

Tim Vigors, a former Newmarket bloodstock agent, wrote the book, Life's Too Short to Cry, which describes his time as a Spitfire pilot, originally based at Duxford.

He was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross for his action during the Battle of Britain and went on to fly in the Far East where he suffered severe burns when his Brewster Buffalo fighter plane was shot down.

He died in November, 2003, aged 82.

His widow, Diana, managed to have the book published in 2006.

It was praised by national newspaper reviewers and is due to be published in paperback from April. It is published by Grub Street and will sell at £8.99.

School satisfactory with 'capacity to improve'

A SCHOOL has been given a satisfactory mark in its latest inspection – seven years after coming out of special measures.

College Heath Middle School in Mildenhall has been told to make improvements and has been warned it could have an additional monitoring visit by an inspector from Ofsted, the Office for Standards in Education.

The latest Ofsted report gives the school an overall grade three "satisfactory" mark. But the inspectors have called for an improvement in standards achieved by pupils in Years 7 and 8; an improvement in behaviour in and out of lessons; reduction in teacher talk and presentation so that pupils can think for themselves and improvement in the management for pupils with learning difficulties and disabilities.

BY John Goode
Email: editorial@newmarketweeklynews.co.uk

The report says a particular strength of the school, which has a high proportion of pupils with learning disabilities or difficulties, is the care given to pupils.

"Pupils' behaviour is satisfactory but not consistently good in and out of lessons," said the report.

"Since the last inspection, there have been improvements in standards at key Stage 2 in behaviour and attendance. Because of these improvements, some of which have been difficult to achieve, inspectors judge that the school has good capacity for further improvement."

In different categories of the inspection the school scored 14 grade 3 "satisfactory" marks and 12 grade 2 "good" marks.

The report praises Valerie Axton, the headteacher. It says she is highly regarded by parents, pupils and staff.

The inspectors agreed that her dedication and effective leadership are central to the school's improvement and pupils' well-being.

Most of the school's 338 pupils come from socially-disadvantaged areas of Mildenhall and Lakenheath.

But the school has achieved Investors in People, Sportsmark and Health Schools awards. It also has a link with Cambridge University's Faculty of Education.

Tools are stolen from van

POWER tools have been stolen from a van after a door was forced.

The white Vauxhall Combi van was parked in Corsican Pine Close, Newmarket, between 10am Sunday, March 2, and 7.10am the next morning when the theft occurred.

‘Cowardly’ MPs fail to save P.O.s

TORIES in Cambridgeshire have branded Labour MPs “cowards” over controversial plans to close post offices across the country.

They accused them of “cowardice” and “hypocrisy” after Labour MPs and ministers who oppose post office closures in their own constituencies voted in favour of a national programme which could see many branches axed in Cambridgeshire.

Around 20 Government backbenchers are believed to have backed a Tory motion calling for a halt to the scheme.

Plans to close 2,500 post offices across the country are in the pipeline with the list for Cambridgeshire due to be revealed in the summer.

Tory MPs Jim Paice, Andrew Lansley, Malcolm Moss, Jonathan Djanogly and Shailesh Vara condemned Labour MPs and ministers on the issue.

BY Bill Jacobs
Email: editorial@newmarketweeklynews.co.uk

Cambridgeshire South-East MP Mr Paice told Business Secretary John Hutton in the Commons debate: “The Government is once again following its top-down agenda instead of allowing local postmasters and people to develop their own services from the grassroots up. Several Labour MPs and ministers – including some in the Cabinet – have been campaigning against closures in their constituencies but voted for the Government on the overall programme.

“This just shows that hypocrisy rules OK in the Labour Party.”

Cambridgeshire South MP and Shadow Health Secretary Mr Lansley said: “We are very worried about what this closure programme will mean to the county. We will not know exactly what happens for another few weeks until the plan for Cambridgeshire is released. These proposals could do huge damage to local communities.

“As with the health rationalisation programme when we had ministers and MPs opposing closures in their own constituencies but supporting the Government in the Commons, we are seeing how Labour says one thing to their voters and does another when at Westminster.”

Huntingdon MP Mr Djanogly said: “In Huntingdonshire all the county, district and town councillors have joined together with me to say clearly: ‘We will fight every single post office closure in the area’. We are hugely concerned at these proposals which will do immense damage to rural communities.

“To see Labour ministers and MPs protesting at closures in their own constituencies and yet failing to follow their clear opinions in the vote is simply cowardice.”

Cambridgeshire North-East MP Shailesh Vara said: “This was the time for members of Parliament of all political persuasions to stand up for the people they represent. Regrettably, a number of Labour MPs who have been talking a good game on saving their local post offices did not back up their rhetoric to their constituents with action and support the motion to force a rethink on post office closures.”

Cambridgeshire North-East MP Malcolm Moss said: “I fear local communities across my constituency and the county will lose their only shop and vulnerable people will lose a service they depended upon.

“Labour ministers have taken no account of the needs of the elderly, of disabled people or of the most disadvantaged – the very ones who will lose out most as this cuts programme rolls out.

“Once again Labour MPs and ministers who talk of saving their post offices in their constituencies have done something else when they came to vote in the Commons.”

Tory Leader David Cameron said: “We sent out a very clear message to the Government – stop the closure of our post offices. Conservatives all over the country have been campaigning against these unnecessary changes.

“It is astonishing that neither the Government nor the Post Office itself has indicated a willingness to find low-cost alternatives to present sub-post offices, based on voluntary and community participation.

“I look forward to fighting against local closures alongside my constituents and we will continue to expose the hypocrisy of this Labour Government’s actions.”

Ministers say the cuts are needed to reduce weekly losses of £4 million and the Tory motion is a “naked piece of opportunism” designed to embarrass the Government.

But Mr Hutton claimed the Tory motion to suspend the closures was based on “false hopes, flawed economics and opportunism”.

He said it had to be accepted that the role of the post office had changed because of technology and consumer behaviour.

Comedienne Victoria Wood feels so strongly about plans to close her local post office that she pledged to chain herself to a post box to save it.

She was joined by former BBC newsreader Richard Baker, actors Bill Paterson and Stanley Baxter, and others at a protest against the closure of Highgate Post Office in north London.

Police appeal in hunt for robbers

DETECTIVES hunting a gang who robbed security guards of "a large quantity" of cash have renewed an appeal for help.

The robbery happened as the guards were delivering cash to the Nationwide Building Society in Mildenhall's Market Place on Monday, March 10.

One of the guards, who was in the branch when the four-man gang struck, was threatened with what is thought to have been a Taser-style stun gun. The other security man, who was still in their van, was also threatened.

The four robbers, all wearing balaclavas and camouflage clothing, sped off in a silver-coloured Vauxhall Omega car which was found four days later in Melbourne Drive, Mildenhall – less than a mile away.

Detective Inspector John Brocklebank has appealed for information from anyone who may have seen the car, registration W103 WBO, before or after the robbery.

He said: "I am renewing my appeal for anyone who runs a guest house or hotel in the town or surrounding area to come forward if they had a group of men stay over the weekend before the robbery, March 8 and 9, with the silver Vauxhall Omega.

"I also want to hear from anyone who may have seen the car between the robbery taking place and it being found on Melbourne Drive four days later.

"The car was seen to leave the scene of the crime in the direction of the A11, but it was found abandoned in the opposite direction. Anyone who has any information on where the car was after the robbery should call police."

Anyone with any information should call Mildenhall CID on (01473) 613500 or Crimestoppers on 0800 555111.

Pub's plan for new bar approved

PLANS for an extension to The Bull pub in High Street, Newmarket, have been approved. Forest Heath District Council has granted planning permission and listed building consent for conversion of an open store area into a new bar area. The scheme includes the installation of two "jumberellas" of four square metres, each including light and heating for customers sitting in the pub yard. New lighting is also planned.

Get on your bike and ride . . .

COMMUTERS can leave their cars at home and beat city centre congestion in Cambridge by hopping onto bikes and then buses.

A new bike and ride scheme has been launched from Cambridgeshire County Council's Park and Ride sites. It aims to encourage people to cycle, lock up, and then enjoy the ride on one of Park and Ride's new buses.

The scheme started last week at the Madingley Road site, where orange juice and pastries were available to all those arriving by bike. It also began at the Newmarket Road Park and Ride site.

The campaign has been launched in partnership with Stagecoach and the Smarter Travel team at Cambridgeshire County Council.

Hannah Fox, environment manager for Smarter Travel, said: "This campaign is a great way of alerting people to the benefits of cycling. It is quick, convenient and fun.

"It's a great opportunity to get out of the car, get fit and help the environment, I hope to see many people cycling and locking up."

■ AT THE READY . . . commuter cyclists trying out the new bike and ride scheme are, from left Hannah Fox, Matthew Shuter and Cllr John Reynolds.

CP.

Councillor John Reynolds, who represents Bar Hill and Dry Drayton, said: "The cycle route from Bar Hill and Dry Drayton to Madingley Road Park and Ride is great.

"We hope cyclists take full advantage of the route and enjoy the great outdoors while encouraging people to do their bit for the environment."

Matthew Shuter, councillor for Lode and Bottisham, where a cycleway runs to the Newmarket Road Park and Ride site, said: "We have spent a lot of money on improving cycle routes so this new initiative is a great way to encourage people to cycle more often."

The council has teamed up with John Lewis to provide bike and riders with a small bag of treats. They can also get discounts at some cycle shops.

For more information pick up a leaflet at the Park and Ride sites or visit cambridgeshire.gov.uk/parkandride

Teen scheme gives cash for new hobbies

BY Stephen Exley

Email: editorial@newmarketweeklynews.co.uk

TEENAGERS in Cambridgeshire are to receive nearly £500 each to spend on positive hobbies, in a trailblazing new project.

Around 2,000 youngsters aged 13-16 will be entitled to the new g2g card, a pre-paid card which will offer young people around £40 per month to spend on specified pastimes.

These include sports, music, dance, drama and outdoor activities, and the scheme has been paid for thanks to nearly £1 million in Government funding.

The trial scheme will run for a year, with PIN numbers used to prevent fraud. It is hoped the project will get young people off the streets and reduce anti-social behaviour.

Councillor Jill Tuck, county council Cabinet member for children and young people's services, said: "Some young people face disproportionate barriers to activities, with the cost of accessing activities a major barrier. Putting spending power in the hands of young people can help them access new opportunities they may otherwise have not had a chance to do.

"The pilots will test out whether this approach gives young people more influence and choice over the activities they want to do, increases their participation in activities and ultimately leads to improved school achievement and reduces crime and anti-social behaviour.

"I am delighted Cambridgeshire has been chosen to pilot this project. We want to support young people so that they can fulfil their potential, whatever their background.

"Participating in positive activities can help build young people's social and emotional skills, helping them navigate risks, seize opportunities and develop the skills and confidence they need to build positive futures for themselves."

A county council spokesman said: "The aim of the pilot will see if giving young people access to activities that boost confidence and self-esteem outside of school can help their confidence and self-esteem inside school."

Youngsters who are cared for, or who receive free school meals, will be eligible for the g2g card. The county is one of just nine in the country piloting the scheme.

The launch takes place on April 4 at the Romsey Mill youth charity in Mill Road, Cambridge.

Celebration of organ sounds

ORGANISTS from across Britain will gather in Cambridge from April 3-5 for a musical celebration organised by the Royal College of Organists.
The series of events aimed at musicians and music lovers is designed to promote and celebrate the best of organ music and playing. Three recitals are open to the public.
Jon Laukvik will be playing Bach at Trinity College at 8pm on Thursday, April 3, Jennifer Bate is playing Messiaen at King's College at 8pm on Friday, April 4, and David Sanger is playing Vierne at the Church of Our Lady and the English Martyrs at 3pm on Saturday, April 5.
Organiser Simon Williams said: "It features one of the most comprehensive range of events and activities we have ever put together."
For information and tickets visit www.rco.org.uk or email events@rco.org.uk

Cool charity

A CHARITY gig at the Soul Tree in Cambridge on Sunday will raise awareness about both depression and asthma.
The event is part of the national It's Cool to Talk tour, which sees a series of gigs performed across the country on the same day.
Playing will be glam punks 9 Fold Punch, rockers Katie Parker and the Elements, classic guitar slingers After 4 and singer songwriter Clara Kousah.
Doors open at 8pm and entry is £5.

Debut performance at Britten concert

BRITTEN Sinfonia will share the stage with the Polyphony choir for a concert on Saturday at West Road Concert Hall in Cambridge.
The evening will feature work by young Polish composer Pawel Lukaszewski, which has been compared to the sacred music of John Tavener and Arvo Pärt.
The Easter-themed programme will include the first UK performance of Lukazewski's Via Crucis as well as Fauré's Requiem.
Polyphony and Britten Sinfonia's musical partnership has resulted in a string of concerts as well as recordings which have included the Grammy-nominated Lux Aeterna by composer Morten Lauridsen.
The concert is at 8pm and tickets are £5-£27. It will be preceded by a free public interview with Pawel Lukaszewski at 7pm. To book call (01223) 357851.

Folk festival finally gets KD on board

By Nik Shelton

CANADIAN country singer KD Lang has been named as one of the headliners of this year's Cambridge Folk Festival.
The event is one of the biggest and most respected folk and roots festivals in Europe and this year will take place from Thursday, July 31, to Sunday, August 3, at Cherry Hinton Hall.
Also on the bill will be political singer-songwriter Billy Bragg and folk singer and violinist Eliza Carthy. The full line-up is expected to be released later this month.
Festival organiser Eddie Barcan has promised a wide range of acts this year covering folk, country and world music as well as one or two surprises.
"KD Lang is someone we are incredibly excited about, it's her first time at the festival and we wanted to get her here for a long time.
"Her latest album is superb. She has a huge appeal to country fans because that's where she started but she's done many different styles and I think she's created her own niche in music.
"I think there's going to be something there to cover everybody's tastes. There's something for those for whom folk is very important and we will also be announcing some names which will appeal to a younger audience."
Festival bosses have announced a raft of changes for this year's event aimed at preventing the ticket fiasco which marred last year's event.

■ HEADLINER . . . KD Lang has been confirmed as one of this year's acts at the Cambridge Folk Festival. Yui Mok/PA Wire.

Recent festivals have seen complaints from angry members of the public queuing for tickets for several hours and then leaving empty handed.
Touts have also plagued the event, buying up tickets and then selling them for a profit on internet auction site eBay.
This year the city council, which runs the festival, is introducing a new online ticket sale system which it promises will be better able to cope with demand.
Tickets will go on sale on May 11 at 9am and from this year only Cambridge residents will be allowed to book in person.
Five hundred tickets will go on sale and box office staff will aim to limit the queue so people will not have to wait in line for hours only to find they are sold out.
The number of tickets each person is allowed to book will also be reduced from six to four.
Cllr Julie Smith, executive councillor for arts and recreation, said: "The high demand for festival tickets is a testament to its popularity, but does raise lots of logistical problems.
"Officers and members have spent a lot of time on this issue and we hope that the sales will go smoothly this year."

NEWMARKET WEEKLY NEWS

MOTORING

i10 is all positive experience

FIRST DRIVE

All-American changeover

RODNEY TIBBS

HERE is a specification which not many years ago would have cost a huge sum and would only have been found on luxury cars.

It would have included aircon, auto transmission, remote locking, electric windows all round, four doors, ABS anti-skid plus electronic brake distribution, alloy wheels, all-round disc brakes heated front seats, electric sunroof, four airbags and six speakers.

This remarkable package comes on the new Hyundai i10 for £7,895 on the road! Of course if you don't want to spend quite that much you can have the base model, which still comes with aircon, ABS and EBD, central locking and six speakers for a blinding £6,495. And between the top-of-the-range and the entry model there are two further choices, at £7,095 and £7,595.

All this would have been understandable if corners had been cut. But not a bit of it. The new i10 is well turned out and nicely finished. The only downside is that the 1.1-litre petrol engine, used throughout, sometimes thrums to keep up.

But Hyundai nails the opposition by offering a full five-year warranty. I half-expected that the automatic would be some kind of mickey mouse arrangement, but the auto box is completely grown up and uses the full range of hydraulics which have become standard on much bigger saloons.

There is a fuel penalty of course, because in physics you seldom get something for nothing. In fact the auto version does 48.7mpg (combined) which is still a respectable figure. Move to the five-speed manual box however and two benefits become apparent. Firstly the fuel consumption improves to 56.5mpg and the emissions levels drop below the magic 120g/km giving an annual road tax of only £35 a year.

Inside the i10 has a well finished dashboard and ample room for passengers. At the rear the usual seat-folding arrangements offer a decent boot for everyday use and additional space with the seats folded for an occasional tricky load.

■ THE HYUNDAI i10 . . . sheer value for money is in itself a new benchmark.

As you would expect with a small car it is a little bouncy on rough surfaces but given average roads and average conditions it gets you there in reasonable comfort. With only 1.1-litres under the bonnet you won't get a heady surge of power and overtaking needs a little planning, but handling is light and positive and the car is always pleasant and fun to drive.

BASICALLY . . .

For sheer value for money and a very comprehensive list of equipment, the i10 sets new standards. If you're hesitating, bear in mind the five year full warranty and I am certain you will take the plunge.

■ TEAM EFFORT . . . and the 'Top Gear' team is the best there is.

'Top Gear' team is due to host MPH '08

FANS of the BBC's hugely entertaining Top Gear show are in for a massive treat later this year following news that MPH, the annual prestige and performance motoring event, will now feature a live version of the TV programme, fronted by Jeremy Clarkson.

Thousands of enthusiasts can expect to enjoy many of the elements of the award-winning TV show brought to life as a live motoring theatre experience when Top Gear Live is launched at London's Earls Court on October 30 before moving to Birmingham's NEC later in the course of November.

For five years, MPH has pioneered a new style of motor show by combining live action motoring entertainment with an original formula of showcasing some of the most exotic cars on the planet. Now this has been developed to include the best elements of the Top Gear show, including a guest appearance by The Stig.

Tickets for the London and Birmingham MPH 08 shows featuring Top Gear Live (October 30-November 2 and November 13-16) go on sale in June, priced from £36.

Shop about to save money and emissions

■ ENVIRONMANTAL MENACE? . . . 4x4's have a bad press when it comes to eco-friendly matters.

THE reaction to the recent budget is filtering through and, in respect of car owners, Alistair Darling has got to be pretty happy, writes Chris Lilly.

Research undertaken by Direct Line a few days after the budget announcement shows that, of those polled who are considering buying a new car, 50 per cent are now much less likely to buy a high emission car in the future.

The true impact of the budget on high emitting vehicles can be judged by looking at what was said before the announcements. A little trawling through the press releases found that a Direct Line poll (yes, the same company) said motorists were four times more likely to buy a higher polluting car than a hybrid or green car.

Ok, there are lies and statistics, but we must look at this in context. The initial knee-jerk reaction is shock that we are going to get taxed more. None of us likes handing over cash to the tax man.

Many of you will agree huge amounts of CO2 being coughed into the atmosphere is a bad thing and something must be done about it. If people don't buy highly polluting cars, un-green manufacturers will lose sales and be forced to do something about it. A high tax now will make a huge impact in the future.

To make the changes to car tax work, customers looking at buying a new car need to look at less polluting models.

■ BUYING POWER . . . could force car makers to get greener and produce cars like the BMW Hydrogen 7.

If you want to make an impact, you could choose a lower class car, but even cars in the same sector can produce dramatically different emissions figures.

You can halve or significantly reduce emissions, even by staying within the same segment.

The Mercedes C-Class sports coupe produces 232g/km of CO2 while the Mini Cooper D, an equally sized sports hatch, will produce 104g/km of CO2.

There are arguments against changing car of course. Some will never give up the luxury of their "Chelsea Tractor" for a super-mini. Many have worked hard to afford such a prestigious car but is it really needed when taking the children to school or for the daily commute?

A brief look within the same sector can find a similarly equipped car, in the same price band, that has less impact on the environment and lower running costs. Thats's not a hardship is it?

Car tax is run in bands from A-G but, as of next year, these will be expanded to M for cars that emit more than 255g/km. Currently, for standard petrol and diesel vehicles, cars in band A – those that emit up to 100g/km of CO2 – pay nothing for Vehicle Excise Duty (VED). The rest of the tax bands and their costs for a year are: B – £35; C – £120; D – £145; E – £170; F – £210 and G – £400.

Next years changes will see band M cars charged £425 a year and a similar scale of rates to the current system is expected. However, more changes in 2010 will see band M cars charged £950 for its first year on the road. This change will hit owners of heavily polluting cars hard.

So, if you are thinking of buying a new car here is a guide to models that will make environmental and financial sense:

Superminis – The Toyota Aygo/Citroen C1/Peugeot 107 emits 109g/km compared with a Ford Ka which puffs out 165g/km.

Small hatchback – the VW Polo Bluemotion and Fiat 500 top the green table with 99 and 110g/km respectively. The Renault Clio can produce 117g/km but reach 179g/km, ignoring the worst Renaultsport models.

Small family car – Ford's Focus Econetic produces just 115g/km. Toyota and Honda are represented in this class with the Prius and Civic Hybrid producing lower emissions than the Focus.

Large family car – The Skoda Octavia 1.9 TDI beats the Renault Laguna with 132 and 136g/km. The sector is quite even though, so most manufacturers have models around the 140g/km mark.

Small prestige cars – BMW's 318d makes the most of its EfficientDynamics and produces 123g/km. Interestingly, the 320d emits just 5g/km more but produces 174bhp compared to the smaller engines 143bhp.

Executive cars – BMW again rules the class with the 520d emitting just 136g/km.

Luxury cars – The Audi A8 2.8FSI nips in under the 200g/km barrier by 1g, not bad for its size.

Sports cars – The sublime handling of the Lotus Elise comes with an output of 196g/km CO2, not bad for a Porsche beater.

■ PROBLEM . . . CO2 emissions should to be lowered.

Infiniti announces FX37 Crossover SUV

INFINITI has announced that the dramatic V8-powered Infiniti FX50, revealed at the Geneva Motor Show, will be joined at launch by a V6 version with 316bhp to be called FX37.

The FX37 will be entering a new and rapidly expanding Crossover SUV market with entries from BMW and Volvo set for release later this year. The blend of coupe looks with SUV practicality is likely to appeal to prestige car buyers and Infiniti's FX37 will be a competitive entry level model.

It will go on sale together with the G37 Saloon, G37 Coupe, EX37 and FX50 starting from October 2008 when Infiniti makes its first entry into Europe.

■ INFINITI . . . makes its first entry into the UK later this year.

■ V6 POWER . . . for the striking Infiniti FX37.

Blue is most popular new car colour

BUYING a new car often has a silver lining for many motorists – that's the most popular colour.

But the most sought-after shade on the used market leaves drivers feeling blue, it seems.

New research by British Car auctions (BCA) saw the firm analyse the colour spread of more than 125,000 vehicles last year from a huge range of sources.

Hundreds of individual colours were recorded, ranging from Antique Green to Zambesi Silver, but once sorted into broad constituent colour groups, blue was most popular colour for second-hand buyers – but only by a fraction of a percentage over silver.

BCA's UK operations director Simon Henstock says: "While colour is a critical factor for new car buyers, our research shows it doesn't rate nearly as highly with used car buyers when it comes to making a purchase."

While BCA's recent annual Used Car Market Report showed that, when UK motorists chose their last used car, price was the most important factor.

"But, in the wholesale market, whatever the age and mileage may be, the most important factors are condition, specification and presentation," says Henstock.

"Colour becomes important to professional buyers once the other factors are satisfied, and while there are no hard and fast rules, the colour needs to match the car.

"As a general rule, good metallic colours always sell well, particularly when paired with a decent set of alloy wheels.

"And, underlining the growing numbers of women buying used cars, we are also seeing softer colours and finishes, such as lilac, mauve, and pearlescent, becoming more popular," adds Henstock.

"Smaller hatchbacks and city cars can carry off brighter colours with ease, but remember that highly fashionable colours can quickly become deeply undesirable. With this in mind, the Limited Editions, with over-fussy colour schemes, tend to date quickest."

"In the upper-medium and mini-MPV sectors, most metallics go well, but large slabs of bright colour can be hard on the eye, while at the other end of the colour scale, black looks funereal.

"In the rugged 4x4 market, buyers like utilitarian colours - greens, greys, and yellows work well."

Henstock concludes: "As used car buyers cannot specify the colour they want, they choose the best combination of model, specification, age, mileage and condition for their budget and get the most attractive colour they can.

"The message for new car buyers, then, is choose a colour scheme that will attract buyers when you come to sell the car, rather than one that will have only a limited appeal."

Pathfinder gets third row of seats

NISSAN has added a third row of seats to the entry-level Pathfinder Trek making all models in the range seven seaters as standard with pricing starting from £23,995.

A third row of seats would normally add in excess of £1,000 to the overall price, but Trek gets seven seats for an additional £500 adding even further to the exceptional value of this go anywhere vehicle.

Rather than adding a traditional bench seat, Nissan decided that the third row in the Pathfinder Trek should come as two individual, flexible seats. They can be positioned both up or both down but also separately, allowing five, six or seven persons to be easily accommodated. As the second row of seats also folds flat the vehicle is ideal for carrying large and long loads, including those awkward furniture boxes from IKEA.

The £23,995 Trek may be the entry-level grade but it is generously equipped and comes complete with 17-inch alloy wheels, colour coded bumpers, chrome grille, dual zone climate control air-conditioning, Bluetooth phone integration and a whole suite of safety features such as six airbags (driver, passenger, side and curtain), remote Superlocking with anti-hijack feature and an alarm system.

Perhaps the best safety feature of all is Nissan's electronic switchable All-Mode 4x4 system. Selecting auto mode ensures two-wheel drive is used at all times until conditions demand that four-wheel drive is required – keeping fuel consumption to a minimum and traction constantly maintained. Ensuring the vehicle stays on the correct path is ESP+ which quickly corrects any detected wheel slippage during cornering. The list doesn't end there – add "uphill start support", which prevents rollback on pull away by holding the brakes on for a short period of time until the accelerator pedal is activated and on automatic transmission versions "downhill drive support" prevents loss of control on steep and slippery descents.

The seven-seater Trek is now available to order through any Nissan dealer and comes complete with a comprehensive three year, 60,000 mile warranty.

Garages 'must improve'

Watchdog reveals how motorists are too often charged for shoddy work

TOO little is being done to stop repair garages carrying out shoddy work at the expense of the motorist, a standards watchdog reported recently.

The British Standards Institute (BSI) stopped short of calling for compulsory independent regulation, but sales and marketing director Ian Harper said the industry had "monumentally failed" to get serious about the issue. The not-for-profit organisation, home of the Kitemark, already runs a regulation scheme – but only 160 of the 18,000 eligible garages have so far signed up. Last year there were 15,253 complaints about car repairs and servicing from independent garages to the UK's official consumer advice body Consumer Direct, up 11 per cent on 2006. Mr Harper said: "The Kitemark can throw a huge amount of confidence back to the consumer. "If the consumer is going to be protected, I think some form of compulsion might be a way forward, but we're not directly calling for it now."

He said compulsion was likely to be met with resistance and it would be preferable if the industry could "get together and do something". The Society of Motor Manufacturers and Traders (SMMT), trade associations and the Bosch car service have all come up with regulatory initiatives. But Harper said the advantage of the Kitemark was that it was independent from any commercial interests and it was focused on looking at how to prevent bad practice in the first place, not on ensuring channels to complain. He said obtaining the Kitemark was a stringent process which looked at all aspects of the business, doing everything from checking out mechanics qualifications to using "mystery shoppers". The cost of £1,500 a year, or £4 a day, was "minimal" when compared to the consumer-confidence it could bring back to the garages. Last November, the Retail Motor Strategy Group (RMSG), made up of 25 industry figures from across the sector, including independent garages, agreed a code of practice designed to drive up standards. The move was welcomed by the National Consumer Council (NCC), which had threatened a "super-complaint", that the industry was significantly harming the interests of consumers.

A Department of Trade and Industry (DTI) taskforce estimated that consumers lose £4 billion a year as a result of shoddy work and poor service.

Kia and Hyundai plan UK advances

■ PROTON GEN-2 . . . helping the firm's UK expansion.

CAR makers from around the Pacific Rim are increa-singly punching above their weight in the UK market, as demonstrated by sister Korean firms Kia and Hyundai.

And there's more to come, from South Korea's SsangYong and Malaysia's Proton.

These two marques haven't yet made it big in Britain, but that could all be about to change. SsangYong, in the showroom doldrums here for quite a while, has just relaunched itself, with better things planned for its Kyron, Rodius and Rexton models.

Proton, on the other hand, has been steadily achieving a greater market share thanks in part to street-smart superminis the Savvy and Satria Neo, and now brings a new saloon to these shores.

SsangYong's big selling point is that its Kyron SUV, Rodius 4x4 and Rexton people carrier models come with better equipment and more attractive prices than their main rivals, and there's now three years' free servicing on all of them.

For anyone not familiar with these South Korean motors, here's a brief insight:

■ Kyron – There are six of these highly capably SUVs on sale in the UK, and most of them use a 2.0-litre, turbo-charged diesel engine, and offer two or four-wheel drive.

They are here to compete with the Kia Sorento, Hyundai Santa Fe and Chevrolet Captiva, and are now priced from just £14,995.

For true off-road ability, there is a 2.7-litre diesel flagship Kyron, the SPR, a permanent 4x4 that wants for very little and costs £22,495.

■ Rexton – All three Rexton variants get the 2.7-litre turbo diesel for in-the-rough power and towing performance, together with permanent four-wheel drive and they're priced from £19,995 to £24,995.

■ Rodius – A people carrier that is unrivalled for space and equipment at the price, and there are four models, one of them a 4x4.

No other seven-seater gets the generous luggage space the Rodius has, and all versions are again powered by that 2.7-litre diesel. Competitive pricing pitches them from £14,995 to £19,995.

Proton, meanwhile, continues a slow but sure upward climb with the introduction of a new saloon model, the Gen-2 Persona.

This four-door saloon is based on Proton's popular five-door hatchback, and is powered by a 1.6-litre, 110bhp Lotus-engineered engine.

Its top speed is 118mph, and there's a choice of a five-speed manual gearbox or a four-speed automatic transmission.

The Gen-2 Persona will be available in UK Proton dealerships from the end of March, together with a £1,000 opening discount.

Alfa Romeo makes bid to snatch Mini's crown

ALFA ROMEO has Mini in its sights. The Italian prestige car maker has just unveiled the Mi.To, a direct rival in the sports-hatch stakes.

The first new car since the stunning 8C Competizione, the Mi.To obviously shares the current stunning design language of the high-tech supercar. The prominent Alfa grille is present as always and the lines from it, running the entire length of the car, have their roots deeply set in Alfa Romeo's history

Small cars from Alfa Romeo haven't always sold in huge numbers but they have always been excellent models, with sharp handling and superb engines. The turbo petrol and diesel units will produce between 90 and 155bhp in various guises with the range set to be extended by higher performance versions after its initial release. Expect a GTA version at least which will certainly out muscle the Mini Cooper S.

The compact Alfa will have a high quality interior, solidly put together with excellent materials while, under the skin, Alfa Romeo's DNA vehicle dynamics system will allow drivers to set the car up to either normal, all weather or sports driving styles, a first for this size of car.

The Mi.To will be launched in the UK early next year and, looking at all the factors including performance, size and potential handling ability, it seems very possible that Mini could meet its match.

■ STUNNING . . . the Mi.To from Alfa Romeo.

■ MUSCLE . . . the Mi To has the high performance factor.

SWIMMING: SUFFOLK COUNTY CHAMPIONSHIPS, IPSWICH

Magnificent Trent in full flow

NEWMARKET head coach Annette Skeet has paid tribute to her swimmers after they racked up 99 personal bests over the course of the Suffolk County Championships.

The club sent 22 swimmers to the Crown Pool in Ipswich during the three weekends of competition, and Skeet was delighted with the results.

"Young Ashley Trent shone like a star," she said, "achieving PBs in the 12 events he entered and securing good Regional Championship qualifications in all.

"Sebastian Pettican, Sean Collier, Hannah Reeder and Leah Fisher also competed in finals, with three other swimmers being reserves.

"We joined forces with Mildenhall as the Saxons for the relays, seeing the teams medalling four times, being runners-up twice, third twice and a close fourth on three occasions.

"I would like to say congratulations to all our swimmers for their achievements, good team spirit and behaviour."

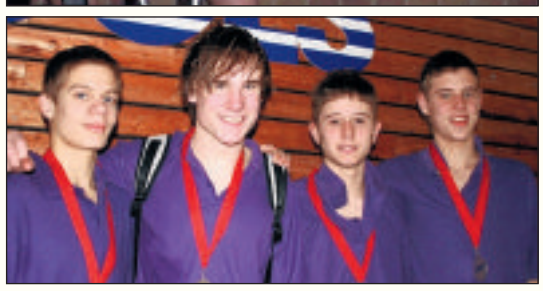
The county championships came during a time when Newmarket collected another trophy, their A team notching a decisive victory in the Rose Seeley Novice Gala with their inexperienced B team third in the gala against Saffron Walden and Ely.

Charlotte Gillard took the team manager's swimmer of the gala award for the A team with two victories in relays, two individual wins – one in a personal best time, the other equalling her PB – while her swim in the 25 yards butterfly in another personal best, beat the cut-off time. The B team featured several swimmers having their first taste of competition, and the 22 new best times reflected their efforts.

Kate McGrath and James Turner were voted swimmers of the gala for the B team. McGrath's three individual swims produced victory in the 11 and under 50yds butterfly, second place in the 50yds backstroke and third in the 50yds freestyle – all PB times – while Turner eclipsed his best time with second place in the 10 and under butterfly.

Final points: Newmarket A 118pts, Saffron Walden 98, Newmarket B 78, Ely 48.

■ MAKING A SPLASH . . . Adam Jamieson in the 'Skins' and (below) silver medallists Brandon Searle, Liam Jamieson, Max White and Sam Molyneux. CP



MILDENHALL Sharks clocked 23 East Regional Qualifying times and had 23 swimmers finishing in the top three of their age group at the Suffolk County Championships.

Top performers over the three weekends, where there were a further 44 top-six placings and 24 club records broken, came from Alaina Scifo, who was second in the 10-year age group; Adam Jamieson, who had several second places at 17 years; and Brandon Searle, with regular second and third placings at 15 years.

Superb swims also came from Meagan Searle, Sam Molyneux and Anica Midthun, all claiming third places in at least one event. Libby Milne and Megan Taylor both impressed, breaking club records, while Tom Russell, Beth Sadler, Trey Thornton, Pippa Palmer, Ben Jamieson, Liam Jamieson and Tyler Poppenwimer lowered personal best times.

Scifo's best events were the 200m backstroke, which she won in 2min 49.82sec, and the 50m backstroke where she touched first in 37.39sec. Adam Jamieson swam consistently, finishing second in almost all his events, his highlights being 29.46sec for the 50m backstroke and 27.67sec in the 50m butterfly. Brandon Searle, who has just moved into the 15-years age group, repeatedly finished in silver and bronze positions, collecting regional times on almost all his swims, including 30.28sec for 50m backstroke and 26.16sec for freestyle. Searle clocked 33.59sec when third in the 16-years backstroke, Midthun was third with 1.11.21 for 100m freestyle in the 11-years, and Molyneux was third in 5.30.34 for the 4x100m Medley.

Qualifiers for the regional competitions were: Alaina Scifo, Megan Morley, Meagan Searle, Liam Jamieson, Sam Molyneux, Brandon Searle, Matt Jones, Adam Jamieson.

Mildenhall joined forces with Newmarket under the 'Saxons' banner for the relays. The 9/10-year girls team were a close fourth in the freestyle relay, before the team of Alaina Scifo, Charlotte Gillard, Molly Reeder and Grace Evans were third in the 4x25m medley relay.

The open boys team of Ben Hicks, Josh Pettican, Matt Jones and Adam Jamieson repeated the bronze medal feat against strong competition while the 15/16-year relay team of Brandon Searle, Liam Jamieson, Max White and Sam Molyneux pulled off a superb double, finishing second in both the free and medley relays, close behind the county record-breaking Ipswich four.

For the first time Adam Jamieson got into into the 'Skins' county swim-off – an exciting spectacle which sees the fastest eight 50m freestylers competing against each other over and over with the slowest dropping out each time. He stayed in for three rounds against impressive opposition.

SPEEDWAY: GRAVERSEN'S IMPRESSIVE AGAIN . . .

Jan stars but Tigers crumble

Rye House Rockets 59
Mildenhall Fen Tigers 33

PREMIER TROPHY

DANE Jan Graversen was the star performer for Mildenhall during an eventful afternoon as the Fen Tigers slumped to their second successive Premier Trophy defeat on Monday.

The 20-year-old winter signing recorded a couple of race victories in another impressive, stand-out performance for the Tigers.

He had to bounce back from a first race exclusion as Rye House steam-rolled their way in front with maximum results in the opening six races.

After being nudged wide in the opening lap of heat three by the Rockets' Tommy Allen, Graversen lined up his opponent entering the next lap and thundered determinedly under Allen, sending the home man sprawling into the shale to earn the Tiger a controversial exclusion.

Undeterred, he won the re-run of heat seven and, three races later, squeezed aggressively through a gap between two riders and the safety fence to win. Fellow Dane Casper Wortmann followed him home as he swooped around Luke Bowen on the fourth turn to seal a maximum 1-5.

■ JAN GRAVERSEN . . . top points.

With captain Robbie Kessler still sidelined with concussion, back-up was limited for Graversen, with Finn Kaj Laukkanen enduring another sluggish start to a meeting and reserve pairing Mark Baseby and James Cockle hitting the deck frequently because of the greasy Hoddesdon surface.

Guest Lee Smart showed glimpses of good form. He rounded Robert Mear on the opening lap of heat four, but locked on the final lap chasing down leader Stefan Ekberg, handing the Rockets another 5-1. But he made no mistake in heat eight in a tapes-to-flag race win.

Laukkanen found his form late on with two second places, including a last-bend blast past Danny Betson in heat 11, and Graversen also bagged a couple of second places late on to add to his top-scoring tally.

Mildenhall's final away Trophy date was at Birmingham last night and they travel to Berwick for a clash in the Premier League on Sunday.

Rye House – Ekberg 12 (5 rides), Woffinden 11+1 (5), Bowen 8+1 (4), Betson 8+1 (4), Allen 7+2 (4), Mear 7+2 (4), Neath 6+1 (4).

Mildenhall – Graversen 12 (5 rides), Laukkanen 7+1 (5), Wortmann 6+2 (5), Smart 4 (5), Cockle 2 (4), A Baseby 1 (2), M Baseby 1 (4)

Jalil will be the big threat to Curlin in cup, says Blasi

ASSISTANT trainer Steve Blasi has sent an ominous warming to the rest of the Dubai World Cup field after insisting American horse of the year Curlin is in better shape for Saturday's $6million showpiece following his Breeders' Cup triumph.

The four-year-old son of Smart Strike completed his final drill before Saturday's climax to the $21m World Cup meeting in impressive style to the delight of Blasi, No 2 to trainer Steve Asmussen.

The top-rated horse in the world has been in scintillating form after arriving in Dubai more than a month ago and won the Jaguar Trophy on February 28 on his eagerly-anticipated UAE debut.

"I believe horses between three and four (years of age) are more mature and stronger and I see that in him," said Blasi.

"Physically there is more to him than there was last year and we like how he is coming in to this race."

On Saturday under the lights at Nad Al Sheba, Godolphin duo Happy Boy and Jalil will lead the challenge with last year's runner-up Premium Tap and Mike de Kock's UAE Derby winner Asiatic Boy also set to be in contention.

Jalil, who will have three-time World Cup winning jockey Frankie Dettori in the saddle, has been the more impressive of the contenders, winning the third round of the Al Maktoum Challenge.

Happy Boy also won the Al Maktoum Challenge Round One, while last year's UAE triple crown winner Asiatic Boy overcame traffic problems to score an impressive victory in the Al Shindagha sprint, although he was a disappointing third in the Burj Nahaar.

But it is Jalil who will give Curlin a "run for his money", according to Blasi.

"Jalil and Asiatic Boy are both quality horses – they haven't done what they have done without being quality horses," said Blasi.

■ ROSS EDGAR . . . medal hopes

Ambitious Edgar in medal pursuit

ROSS Edgar was confident he could handle the pressure to help Great Britain win the team sprint gold medal at the World Track Cycling Championships in Manchester.

The Newmarket rider was the pivotal second man with Jamie Staff on the front and the legendary Chris Hoy at the back. Edgar, 25, had to settle for silver in the event last year in Majorca with Hoy and Craig Maclean after losing to France.

He said: "We were runners-up by two-thousandths of a second and were a bit bummed by that."

But Edgar said it was vital to get at least a medal.

He said: "Great Britain have always been on the podium in the team sprint for many years so there's a big expectation.

"We had the qualifiers for the team a couple of weeks ago and it was very close and I got through purely on the technical side when they were looking at delivery speed."

The team event was last night but Edgar will race in the individual sprint today before aiming to improve on his bronze from last year in the moped-paced keirin event on Saturday.

He said: "I was at the worlds in Manchester as a spectator in 2000 and it was an amazing atmosphere. Now I train on this track four times a week and hopefully I can come away with a medal."

Meanwhile, Mildenhall's Victoria Pendleton will be aiming to secure a second hat-trick of titles after claiming gold in the individual and team sprints, and keirin last year.

Bacon on the boil to foil Jack

BOXING: New Astley's Matt Jack had his hopes of reaching the Eastern Counties Senior ABA Championships ended on a split decision by Henry Bacon, of Lowestoft's Triple A ABC.

Light-heavyweight Jack was always just one step behind throughout the bout, and coach Mark O'Reilly said: "It was an excellent contest but Henry got a bit of a lead early on and we were playing catch-up.

"It was the best I've seen Matt box."

Wright on the mark

MOTORSPORT: Jonathan Wright recorded three remarkable doubles and set a lap record at the first and second rounds of the Bike Sports Championships at Snetterton.

The father-of-five from Swaffham Bulbeck, whose bike was fired by a new PowerTech Suzuki engine, recorded two pole positions, two wins and two fastest laps. He clocked 1min 07.33sec to gain pole position for the first race and although he started poorly, he regained the lead on the second bend and won by 30.63 secs. In the second, he led from start to finish and again won by 30.27sec.

'We won't struggle next season'

Future's bright: Johnson

KARL Johnson is in positive mood about Newmarket's future, no matter what division they are in next term.

The Jockeys were due to meet neighbours Haverhill Rovers at Hamlet Croft on Easter Monday, but the weather intervened.

However, Johnson, pictured above, is confident his team, who are bottom of the Ridgeons League, Premier Division with eight games to go, will give it their all in the run-in.

The Newmarket boss said: "We really wanted to play on Monday because we've won two of the last three and are starting to get a bit of a run together.

"We've now got a team which is more than capable of finishing top of the bottom half of the table, but we need nine wins and we've only got eight games left.

"If we win seven then who knows? But out of the squad of 18, 14 have said they'll stay with us no matter what next season. So if we do go down we'll have a strong side and if we stay up we won't be struggling down the bottom next season."

Newmarket are due to meet Harwich & Parkeston on Saturday in one of five remaining away games, and Johnson knows they will be desperate to ease their own relegation worries.

He said: "Harwich will want to win to make sure they're safe, but we'll be up for it."

Stanway 2 Mildenhall 0

RIDGEONS LEAGUE, PREMIER DIVISION

JOHN Sands missed a penalty as Mildenhall suffered their first league defeat in eight outings.

The visitors fell behind after 35 minutes, and Owen Paynter saw an effort ruled out for offside before the interval.

Sands then had his spot-kick saved before Stephen Spriggs hit the woodwork. A late goal compounded their misery and joint-manager Tony Lyes said: "We dominated the whole game, but their goalkeeper had one of those days where he saved everything."

Mildenhall are fourth in the table and face league leaders Soham at Recreation Way on Saturday.
